

This CS project showed me the hardships of being a programmer. It also made me realize all the processes they go through to create the apps we know and love. This journey had its up and downs, a lot of downs, but in the end we were able to get through it. It may not have been the best but that means there is still room for improvement.